They prefer any amount of friction, crowding and pinching to relative smoothness, space and ease in smaller cities.

The king gave the child to the true mother, and had the other pard. This seems to me, if not the more remitive, that the wisdom should ask her, while they were steaming through a dense fog, what she thought of New York. I am acquainted with scores of persons who have for years been living here from hand to mouth, who have no pecuniary or other prospects whatever. They could unquestionably improve their condition by moving away, and they believe they could. But they like so many others, are wedded to New York and refuse to be divorced. They would rather rub along here than flourish in the interior; they are permanently under the spell of the metropolis. The tens of thousands who have resoluted the spell of the metropolis. But they, like so many oth-ers, are wedded to New York and refuse to olis. The tens of thousands who have reurned are complaining of the EXPENSIVENESS OF THE CITY. This has become a chronic complaintprices having advanced, they say, even years necessities as well as luxuries have been going up, notably within eighteen months, and are higher to-day, it is said, taking them altogether, than they have ever been. As an example, the figures of boarding houses have been put up; those that have been charging $10 a week, now asking $12, and those that have been charging $12, asking $14 and $15. This, a most important change, must bear heavily upon a very large and industrious class. As to the hotels, rates of the leading ones on the American plan have long been $5 a Several of the principal theaters contemplate raising the price of tickets, for the best places, from $1 50 to $2 each, and livery stables talk of a further upward turn for carriages, despite their large advance last January. These are styled superfluities; but superfluities have grown to be essentials which, as commonly rated, are very dear likewise. Provisions, all household articles, servants, rents, are higher than they were at this time a year ago, and there is no probability of their strife for money in this tumultuous, wearing town-not to get rich, but simply to eep afloat. The shifts and straits to which the average New Yorker is put, year after year, in trying to make both ends meet, is scarcely suspected by the outside public. If he were not wonted to it, it would assuredly break him down; NEVADA

It, it would assuredly break him down; and then he is greatly helped, from time to time, by the ease with which he obtains of Edward III., Parliament extended the privilege of clergy, as it is called, to clerkly laymen until the reign of Elizabeth.

C. B. LUCE, M. D.. Genoa, Nev., writes: "I have used WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY for many years in private practics, and consider it an excellent preparation for Corgbs, Colds, etc. I cheerfully recommend it."

I they are ever conndent that Fortune has something in store for them, and although this is a delusion, it is a delusion to which they cling to the last. Thousands of Manhattanese increase their indebtedness every year, and really depend upon their capacity to procure credit as a source of income. It may truly be said that, in the midst of life they are in debt, which they only discharge by dying. But for ardent hope New York would be well nigh depopulated. Most of us fight the losing battle of life here sustained by excessions.

A hundred thousand dollars is not much to so enterprising and liberal a manager as Abbey, who is the most daring of all his tribe. He likes to do big things; he is fully at ambitious of reputation as he is of monetary gains. A few years ago he was wholly unknown. Coming to New York from Ohio, where he followed the calling of a jdweler and watchmaker in a small interior town, he aspired to be a leader in the theatric world, and he has become such. [Correspondence Record-Union:]
New York, November 2, 1882.
Nearly all the absentees, whose number and length of stay in the country or abroad increase every year, have, with the close of October, come back to town. The city is very full, and is rapidly growing fuller, as the hotels and boarding-houses, and the active demand for any and every place to live amply attest. Many houses and apartments are now leased from October and November, instead of from May, as used to be the universal custom, and persons who have not yet secured domiciles for the winter have difficulty in getting in anywhere. Almost all the desirable additional property is the secured domiciles for the winter have difficulty in getting in anywhere. Almost all the desirable additional property is the secured with the consequence behind the formal property and the principal source of our legends and parables. But here, too, many problems still wait for their solution. Think, for is not even very pretty. Any number of women in New York, who have never aspired to bellehood, are comelier than she the comelier than she hould. She is not beautiful—to do her justice she does not pretend to be. She is not even very pretty. Any number of women in New York, who have never aspired to bellehood, are comelier than she. Her esthetic reputation, to call it such, was the result of accident, but it has been carefully and industriously cultivated. If Millais had not painted her portrait, and the Prince of Wales had not taken her up, she would not refrain from making a spring at it. This, too, is very like a Sans-krit fable, but how, then, should it hands the Prince of Wales the dockers in the principal source of our legends and parables. But here, too, many problems still wait for their sold west. Buddhism is not known to heat one justices the does not pretend to be. She is not even very perty. That at the time of Solomon there was a channel of communication open between India and Syria and Palestine is established beyond doubt, I believe, by certain Sanskrit words which occur in the Bible as names of ar-ticles of export from Ophir, articles such as ivory, apes, peacocks and sandalwood, which, taken together, could not have been exported from any country but India. Nor is there any reason to suppose that the commercial inter-

I must confess that, not having increase being composed of persons who pretend to live elsewhere, but spend more or less of the six cool months here. New York is getting to be more and more of a wintering place every year, both business and pleasure attracting thousands from other sections. A great many well-to-do families from New England, the South and West, are in the habit of coming to the metropolis either this month or early in Tripitaka, we likewise read of two women who claimed each to be the mother of the same child. The King, variety of ways of spending money, and those who have a deal of money to spend can readily have what is called a good time. It is the constant and rapid growth of wealth by accumulation within and without that renders this city so very dear. Prices are graduated to the incomes of the rich, not graduated to the incomes of the rich and the rich and graduated to the incomes of the rich and the rich and graduated to the incomes of the rich and the rich and graduated to the incomes of the rich and graduated to the graduated renders this city so very dear. Prices are graduated to the incomes of the rich, not to the earnings of the financial middle-class, the result being that, to people of moderate means, life in the metropolis is an unending struggle.

One might think it would be so severe, It was characteristic of the average relationship of the child cry. That settled the question.

sonception that gave them genders at all in anguage or in legend is clearly the same in either case, namely, that the sun and moon were actual human beings like our Mrs. Abby Sage Richardson has prepared a volume of "Old Love Letters," said to upper Palatinate of Bavaria, where it is still common, or was recently to hear common, or was recently, to hear moon as Herr Mond. But yet mere strange than this is the fact that in the same district the tale should still survive which accounts in the following common place but suggestive way for the genders of the luminaries in question: The moon and sun were man and wife, but the moon proving too cold a lover and too much addicted to sloep, his wife one day laid him a wager, by virtue of which the right of shining by day should belong in future to whichever of them should be the first to awake. The moon laughed, but accepted the wager, and awoke next day to find that the sun had for two hours already been lighting up the world. As it was also a condition and consequence of their agree-ment that unless they awoke at the same time they should shine at different times, the effect of the wager was a permanen separation-much to the affliction of the triumphant sun, who, still retaining spouse-like love for her husband, was and always is trying to repair the matrimonial breach. I have known others to be cured of palpitation of the heart. Everybody engaged in labor weakening to the nerves should use celery daily in the season and onions in its stead when not in season." To this we may add that a prominent New York druggist draws in winter from his soda fountain a hot extract of celery, mixed with Liebig's meat extract, under the name of ox-celery. It is a nour ishing drink at lunch time, far better than coffee or tea, and is doing a great deal in coffee or tea, and is doing a great deal in this neighborhood to promote temperance.

THE RISE AND FALL OF PARTIES. The history of political parties in this ountry furnishes a series of illustrations of the application of natural laws which has not been thus far heeded sufficiently to produce the reforms the need of which is indicated by these phenomena. All parties are pure and earnest when they arise. They owe their origin to their superior fitness, as contrasted with that of their predecessors. They attract the best elements by the patriotism and wisdom of their principles, and they begin by bringing strong men to the front. In their earlier years these strong men establish their reputation. But the higher that reputation is the lower will be the inevitable subsequent descent of the party. For when the great and noble aims which inspired its youth have been accomplished, the fire of enthusiasm which wrought upon it dies out, and the men who made it glorious retire, conscious that their mission is fulfilled. Then commences party decline. To the unselfish patriots who guided it and maintained the elevation of its purposes, succeeds a very different class. The new men are selfish, scheming adventurers, whose highest ambition is to traffic successfully upon the past reputation of the party. The first step taken by these new managers is to utilize the party discipline. The organization which enthusiasm made easy is forthwith cemented which accounts for most of the advance on that steals over the party. It may go on for trust to argument for their influence. many years, shouting the same war-cries, rallying the same hosts, achieving the same successes. But during all this secondary period it is undergoing a steady > ceased to exist. Public-spirited men have little by little been ousted from its management, either by trickery, or from sheer inability to tolerate the methods which are employed. Principles have been abandoned. Platforms have become as perfunctory as the petitions which are inscribed on the prayerwheels of Tibet. By degrees the entire personnel of the management has been changed. What was originally uppermost has disappeared. What was originally at the bottom has come to the surface. Party politics has become a profession. It is carried on by chicanery of the most elaborate kind. It involves the constant use of a long series of methods every one of which has been specially devised to cheat the public out of the suffrage, and to force upon them candidates whom they would never choose if left to themselves. In this stage of party activity the Government becomes merely an agency whereby friends can be rewarded. The public service is degraded into a military chest. The right of the people to the full and faithful

Nothing could bring about such a reform save a reorganization of the party, which would involve the re-creation of it. But parties never are re-created. The same mysterious laws which bring to decay and death every living organism, and which in the fullness of time turn the life-giving machinery to the task of disintegration, govern politics. The nobler and more brilliant the youth and vitality of a party, the more certain Queen Christina, of Spain, was delivered of a is its age to be corrupt. When at last the long-ga breaks, there follows a refreshing to estimate the losses whch seller to the Indians. He said that whatever Penn had accomplished in the way of building up a great empire in the East he had tarnished, and more than tarnished, by an act for which he should ever be condemned. He had purchased the lands of the lands condemned. He had purchased the lands of the Indians he exchanging for them that devil of civilization—rum. He had introduced among the Indians "fire-water," which was probably responsible for more Indian outrages than their own wild and lawless spirit. The discourse created much excitement in the Quaker City.

The country press is prolific in astonishing exchanging over the late election. Here are a few copied at random from exchanges: "Fearful Flood," "Great Upheaval," "Complete Overthrow," "A Line of Ruins," "Overwhelming Reversal," "Unprecedented Upheaval," "Tidal Wave of Opinion," "The Rising Waters," etc.

He filled the columns of the Chronicle and the Exciples, the enormous increase of demagogues, and a prevalent indifference to the real interests of the nation. It is very seriously to be questioned whether the periodical thunderbursts which create political revolutions, and which mark the final exit of hopelessly corrupted parties, at all sufficiently compensate the people for the very disproportionate periods of endurance which precede and lead up to the control of the Chronicle and the Exciplination of the Chronicle and the Exciplination of the Chronicle and the Exciples to the wees and wrongs of the people in consequence of the inflictions imposed by that bydira-headed monater, the railroad. the majority to rule. It has been found that in the absence of such a rule a very small minority in the House of Commons could block the businsss of the session, and virtually bring the Government to a standstill. Under the new closure rule the Speaker will have the right of initiating a motion to close the debate, but only when he perceives that such a proceeding accordance with "the evident sense of the House." When the Speaker puts the question the debate cannot be closed by a simple majority except when the number voting in the affirmative is over 200. As this is a case which occurs very seldom, it will be seen that the closure can really only be resorted to upon extraordinary occasions; and this is a guarantee against its abuse. In fact the new rule proposed by Mr. Gladstone is not so efective or so sweeping as our "previous question," though nobody has ever discovered in the latter a sinister machinery for the suppression of free speech. As a fact the "previous question" is absolutely indispensable to the steady and useful prosecution of public business in legislative bodies, and the only cause for surprise is that the House of Commons should have been able to get on at all without a rule of the kind. Henceforth, however, it will be useless for any faction to attempt the kind of obstructionist filibustering which was so successfully carried on by the Irish members last year, and those who wish to gain the votes of the House will have to

THE PRENCH UNEASINESS.

It is very difficult to ascertain how much of serious danger there is in the recent manifestations of anarchy in France. Reacompleted all resemblance save that of soning by analogy it does not seem probable name, to the original organization, has that any considerable percentage of the people of that country can have been infeeted by Nihiliam, and yet the unruly element may be cons lerable enough to cause trouble. Of course it must always be borne in mind that there are two, if not three, French factions, which are anxious to throw discredit upon the present government. It has been alleged that Gambetta is not above availing himself of a melo dramatic situation to recommend himself once more as a possible Savior of France. The Legitimists are interested also in creating the belief that the republic is weak, and the Bonapartists are of the same mind. But though there may be some exggeration or even imposture about the recent abuses. there are facts enough to show that it is not wholly insubstantial; that in fact there is some kind of an organization which is trying to incite ill-disposed people to commit outrages with dynamite and other explosives, and is publishing elaborate instructions for the manufacture of these terrible agents. This anarchic organization may be a mere skeleton, or it may be more. Whatever it is, the country demands its prompt extirpation, and if the Govern. ment cannot get at it, it is quite possible that the Government may be overthrown, In that event we suppose Gambetta will offer himself again, though there is nothing to show that he could do anything more French are making rapid advances in the French are making rapid advances and making rapid advances are making rapid advances a laughed at in England because some people there think the recent elections in the United States have somehow discredited his judgment upon American traits and tenden. cies. But the fact is that the elections have not discredited Mr. Spencer at all. What he said was that the American people were prone to tolerate petty invasions of their individual rights. He did not say that they were prone to tolerate long continued political abuses, though if he had said that he would undoubtedly have spoken the truth. The recent elections, Sutter (1)—S. R. Fortna (D.).

Triuity and Shasta (1)—J. M. Briceland however, really confirm and emphasize his criticism, for they show how long it takes to bring about political changes which are in the nature of reform. As to our endurance of small abuses, the elections have no bearing upon that matter, but the accuracy of the representation made by Mr. Spencer has not yet been questioned on this side of the Atlantic, and we do not think it is at all likely to be.

THE RAILROAD QUESTION. It was claimed by the Chronicle that both Humphreys and Charles Clayton were friends of the railroad, and that John T. Doyle represented the anti-railroad senti-ment of the city of San Francisco. He had been allowed to ventilate his anti-railroad opinions at extreme length in the Examiner. He was the embodiment of the antimade it the burden of his harangues throughout the State that he was the only original anti-rail and Jacobs. He bid for and he received less votes by some housands than those candidates on the the friends of the railroad. This proves that the railroad issue was a sham or a fraid, gotten up by political demagogues to deceive and mislead the people. The result takes this question out of politics. A square presentation of the whole railroad question would demonstrate that there is no such prejudice against them as the po-litical freebooters would have us believe. THE RAILBOAD AS A PACTOR.

DOMESTIC NEWS. orture and Rebbery of an Aged Mise CINCINNATI, November 12th.—For twenty cears Edward Holroyd has lived in what was once a beautiful residence on East Walnu Hills. In 1839 he was a partner of John Shillito. A quarter of a century ago came the first difference between man and wife. With his fast-accumulating wealth he ac-quired a greed for more, and in an effort to obtain possession of his wife's property he brought on the quarrel. She still lives only a short distance from her former home, but her husband cut off all communication with the outer world. Once a day, from that tim on until now, a man came with a supply of provisions, and, depositing them inside the door, would find there at the the door, would ned there at the same time money for the supplies of the day. He never saw his patron. Four times each year he was visited by his agent, whom he would meet outside the dwelling, and there receiving briefly his reports would issue the necessary instructions, and then retire to his residence. Sourced by age, the man became a micer and among the investment training. residence. Sourced by age, the man became a miser, and among the ignorant stories were current that his house teemed with wealth. Friday night enterprising burglars forced a shutter, and going up stairs broke open the door of his sleeping-room and dragged the terrified man from his bed. There were four intenders three wested the fourth of the state of the control of the state of the fourth of the state of intruders, three masked, the fourth a large heavy man, standing back and giving orders. Demands for money brought n reply, as the victim was speechless from fright. Blows were next resorted to, and finally they dragged him through the house, believing that when he reached that apartment where was the hidden treasure would indicate it by pantomime, if he could not speak. From one place he produced pocketbook containing $5. Dragging him o they stopped in one of the lower rooms and on fresh torture. The large may placed his beavy heel on one of Holroyd's bare feet, and gave a twist that wrenched the large toenail from its place. As well as possible the men were told to go to a closed oom facing them and look in a wooden bo that was on a shelf. In that recep tacle, under many rage, they found five $1,000 Government bonds, which had hive $1,000 Government bonds, which had lain there for twenty years, with the interest as yet untouched. They were worth now over $13,000. They also found $200 in money. Having all, he hoped they would now go away; but he was disappointed. Procuring newspapers, they lighted them and singed his body in several places for further extortion, but without avail. Clying him a food tion, but without avail. Giving him a fins beating, they started on a ransacking tour and made their escape. Saturday afterno neighbor saw a window open in the old man's house. This was so unusual that a investigation was made. A Lieutenant police visited the place, forced open a win low and made his way to the old man's room Desolation was everywhere; rags, dirt an

Referring to the November elections, Mr. Randall form successes mean a declaration by the people in favor of greatly reducing the public expenses, both in the general and local govtained, and can be secured without frictio by proper administration. Republican con-trol has led to extravagance in every direcpower are not equal to the accomplishment o such a result. There are many ques-tions vital to our prosperity that must be met, and among the number none are of more importance system. As for myself, I am in favor of an absolute and entire repeal of all such taxation absolute and entire repeal of all such taxation. The Republicans made a mistake in not cooperating with the Democrats at the last session of Congress in securing the proposed reduction of $70,000,000. Now the whole system must go." Mr. Randall then proceeded to show how the Government coul raise the revenue necessary to meet its obligations and expenses. He said: "I do not favor a tariff enacted on the ground of pro-tection simply for the sake of protection, be-cause I doubt the existence of any con-stitutional warrant for such construction or the grant of any such power. It would manifestly be in the nature of class legisla-tion. In my judgment, the question of free trade will not arise practically in this country during our lives, so long as we continue to during our lives, so long as we continue to raise revenues by duties on imports. There-fore the discussion of that principle is abso-lute waste of time. There is hardly a man in public life who advocates it pure and sim-ple. Nobody wants direct taxation, al-though it would bring taxation so near and The funeral of Figueros took place to-day constantly before the people that Congress would hesitate long before it voted the sums of money it now does, if not for improper, at least for questionable purposes. Reform in the civil service of the Government is needed, and the enactment of laws to prevent the en forced assessments upon officials' salaries whether such office-holders are under Federal State or municipal authority. I think can assure the public that nothing will be done by the Democratic House which will in any degree disturb or even embarrass the present business relations and property."

In Regard to Pensions. WASHINGTON, November 12:h .- Pension Commissioner Durley, in preparing the ta-bles for his annual report, has made the dis-covery that there are 100,000 ex-soldiers yet living in the United States who have never applied for pensions. These men are getting along in years, and disorders contracted in the service are manifesting themselves in pensionable disabilities. The prevalent idea that the pension rolls should be decreasing at this time is a roll. at this time is erroncous. They are, on the contrary, likely to increase for some years. The annual amount for current payments is now about $55,000,000, exclusive of arrears.

In the last year of the seventeenth century a man appeared in Glasgow in whom the city found a benefactor, who has been rather ungratefully forgotten. His name was Wilson; he was born in Flakefield, and, in as far as he is remembered at all, it is by the name of his birthplace. He had peen a weaver before he served as a soldier in the Continental wars : and while so serv. ing in Germany his eye was one day attracted by a woven blue and white checkered handkerchief. It was a lucky moment for Glasgow when Flakefield bought this article. He stowed it away among his treasures, and he resolved "some day weave one like it. In the year above named he and the prized handkerchief, with Flakefield's father and brother, settled in Glasgow, and there the ex-soldier, returning to his old calling, attempted to produce a woven blue and white checkered andkerchief. After some unsuccessful essays Flakefield succeeded, and the blueand-white checkers were soon familiar all over the country. There was a rage for the novel handkerchief. Fresh set-up looms could hardly produce these articles fast enough, and on them the extensive linen manufacture of Glasgow was founded.

Some years after the town-drummer of the city was a man who excited much sympathy. This humble official, in fact, was none other than Wilson of Flakefield, the old soldier and weaver, whose loom had started into life the above-named manufacture. But rival looms, whose owners had greater capital, beat out of the field the "wabster body" who had done so much Paris, November 12th.-Counsel for the for Glasgow. He fell into poverty, and all resecution state that the proceedings of the that generous Glasgow could or would do for him was to make him useful (on small pay) in his old days-as town-drummer!! So runs the story, but it is to be suspected that there is a dash of romance in the details. About the time that Flakeland and his kinsmen settled in Glasgow the city was making rapid strides in manufacturing importance. From its 12,000 inhabitants, 1695, a monthly cess was obtained for the expenses of the war, which amounted to £1,800. It seems incredible, but it can be proved. The amount of this tribute made Glasgow second only to Edinburgh, which contributed £3,880; and thus in the course of a century. Glasgow had advanced from the fifth to the second city in the kingdom of Scotland. - [Manchester Times. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hor Land.-The Bentley ranch of 150 acres, situated in Yolo county, near the Sacramento river, has been purchased by Daniel Flint, of this city, for $9,000. It is understood that the land will be cleared of the willows and next season planted in hops, The willows on the property will furnish sufficient poles for the first season. The Com-stock ranch, in Yolo county, suitable for hop-raising, was recently purchased by R. J. Merkley. It consists of 160 acres, and the price paid was $12,000. It is understood that some of the owners of land on the American river have refused to re-lease the land to those who raised hops on it this year stating that they intend to go into the hop raising business themselves, while others have raised the rent to what the lessees consider exorbitant rates. The land mentioned else where as having been sold by auction in front where as having been sold by suction in front of the Court-house on Saturday will be used in part for raising hops. Others are negotiating for the purchase of hop land, while many owners are making preparations to have a crop of hops next year. The great demand for hops this year and the consequent high price has caused land that was heretofore considered almost valueless to be held at a higher figure than some good farming land in this section. Persons who were almost too poor to own their land now see visions of unexpected wealth. A careful estimate of dealers places the crop this year at 7,000 bales. The bales will average about 185 pounds. Of the crop 600 or 700 bales still remain unsold, although the price has advanced to $1 per pound. There vere about 750 acres in this and Yolo county in hops this year. The prospects now are that this acreage will be doubled and perhaps that this acreage will be doubled and pernaps trebled the coming year. That the extraordinary price of one dollar per pound, which is three times that of last year, and nearly eight times that of 1880, will continue for another season is improbable, as it was caused this year by an almost entire failure of the crop in Europe and the Eastern States. The main issue, he said, will be tariff revision and labor reform, and as Governorevision and labor retorm, and as Governor-elect Ben Butler understands these questions better than any other man living in the United States, he will, the speaker declared he trusted, be the nominee of the new De-mocracy for President. Mormon Fanatics Murder their Son. SANTA ANA, November 11th .- Josiah B. mith, a fisherman living on the Chico beach, near Westminster, murdered his fourteenyear-old son by cutting his throat. The crime was committed last week, Saturday, and the body hastily buried by Smith, and nothing was known of it until yesterday noon, when the murderer confessed it to some hunters. He said when he was fishing a few days ago the Lord commanded him to stop and to become a fisher of men. A short time ago he called at the Westminster Postoffice for a package, which the good Lord had told him He had sent by wail. He had sent by mail. When the Postmaster told him that there was none he became quite angry, saying the Lord never made any mis-takes. He says the Lord commanded him to sacrifice his son, and he did it, cutting his throat from ear to ear with a long butcher-knife. His wife seems to be a party to the deed, and says the Lord commanded and they had to obey; that if He ordered other sacrifices they would make them, even if they had to kill each other. The family are Mormons, and are considered crazy. The entire family are under arrest. The body has been distriterred, and the inquest and examination is now being held at Westminster. Intense excitement exists in the vicinity of the murder, but no threats are made of summary punishment. It appears, on further investigation, that the boy was held by his mother while the miserable father committed the crime. POLICE COURT.-The following business FURTHER DETAILS OF THE SICKENING AFFAIR. SANTA ANA, November 12th .- In the case of Smith, charged with murder in killing his own son, the examination was held at West-minster yesterday. On being arraigned Smith pleaded guilty as charged, and reiterated his statement of committing the crime under divine inspiration as a sacrifice to the Lord. The only witnesses were Smith and his wife, both of whom gave the sickening details of the horrible affair, and the way it was carried out. The wound was an im-BARGE RAISED.—The barge Granger, which was sunk in the Sacramento river near Princeas to cut the breast bones and penetrate some eight inches. The scene of the crime is a small island off the Bolsa Chica beach, about five miles southwest of Westminster, and three miles southwest of Westminster, and three miles southwest of Anaheim landing. It is impossible to reach the spot without a boat, and it is a rare thing that anyone goes there. The nearest house is about a mile and a half distant. he replied, "No; I feel sorrow at the loss of my son, but no remorse, as I was inspired by God to do the deed. The inspiration only came about ten minutes before the act was done. The remains were kept from the 4 h to the 10th instant." When asked why he did so, he replied that he had kept the body in the expectation that the Lord would direct him what to do with it. At first he intended to burn the body, thinking no sacrifice could be complete without fire; but receiving no further command from the Lord, he buried him at the end of a week. All this time his wife and the other children, of whom there are three or four, the eldest seven years old, had but little to eat, he having thrown what little there was in the house away. FOREICN NEWS. The Anarchists in France.

Lyons, November 11th.—A placard has been posted on the walls of the principal buildings and on bulletin boards calling for another Socialistic demonstration here. The authorities are unable to discover who placed the placards, so secretly has it been done; but notice has been given, and it is probable the demonstration will take place. The police are on the alert and will prevent, if possible, any outbreak or tendency to become unruly. The military continue in the barracks, ready to be called on at any moment. It is not likely the anarchists will find as smooth sailing as before if they attempt to disturb the peace of the city and nation.

Frank James, the Bandit King.

St. Louis, November 11th.—A gentleman just axrived from Independence, Missouri, says the people of Jackson county are lionizing Frank James, the bandit king. He says all ages, sexes and classes of society are represented among Frank's admirers. Men go, they say, to hear Frank tell of his wonderful exploits, and ladies for the purpose of consoling and piedging their influence with the Governor to secure a pardon, should he be so unfortunate as to be convicted. The ex-members of Quantrell's brigade go for the purpose of renewing old acquaintance, and young citizens "Cracker Neck" and "Rushbottom" hear his romunite tales of life in the saddie. COUSIN SHADRACH'S WILL "Are you my aunt Dorcas?"

Mrs. Torracce had been entertaining a quilting bee that afternoon, and she had got the frame out of the way, the dishes washed up, and the apartments generally "tidied," when there came a meek tap at the door, and there in the yellow April twilight stood a small figure in a gray traveling shawl and holding a bag.

"Sakes alive!" said Mrs. Torrance,

"Who be you?"
"I am Emily," said the girl. "Please let me in, for I am tired and cold. I've walked all the way from the station, and "Ye had nothing to eat since noon."
"Well, I never!" said Mrs. Torrance,
"You're the city schoolma'am, ain't you, as went out to live with cousin Shadrach? And he's dead, and the money has all gonto the Baptist widow and orphan fund? You didn't make much by that move, did you? And you've come back to us now, though we wasn't stylish enough for you before. Well, come in, come in."

And Mrs. Torrance, who was essentially kind-hearted woman, albeit she could not repress the aneer that rose to her lips, moved the low rocker to the fire and flung another log on the andirons.

Cousin Shadrach had been the family gone.

There had been a spice of jealousy in the family as regarded Emily for a long time. Emily had been looked upon as "proud" and "stuck up," because, instead of entering a factory, or learning the dressmaker's trade, she had elected to be a teacher. She had never visited Job Torrance's far until now—now that cousin Shadrach had willed his money to the Baptist widows and orphans—her own mother was dead, and her step-father, a pompous old wholesale grocer, objected to step-children, so that there seemed to be no other haven of seture left to her.

Who could blame Mrs. Torrance for a momentary feeling of triumph when Emily Alden came thus to her door-stone in the twilight of that April day?

But she helped her off with her things, made a cup of tea for her, and finally escorted her to a little room under the roof-tree, where the floor was covered with a home-made rag carpet, and the bed was decorated with a rainbow "Job's troubles" quilt, and you could look out of the win-quilt, and you could look out of the winquilt, and you could look out of the window into a greening meadow, where a whip-poor-will plainted its melancholy re-

"I hope you will sleep well," said Mrs.
Torrance, "We eat breakfast at 5 o'clock."
And then she went away.
Early as was the breakfast hour, Emily was awake at least an hour before it. As if the tumultuous glee of the robins and blue birds in the old orchard would permit any one to sleep! And as she lay with her cheek against the pillow, watching the rosy dawn-light creep up the wall, she heard the sound of voices in the meadow below her casement.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting o nurning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish bue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
